Director

Nicole Sarah Fry

BIOGRAPHY

Nicole is a BIFA-qualifying British director known for creating visually immersive period films that entertain as well as inform. Since launching her directing career in 2022 with her award winning short Desires and Delusions, she has rapidly built an acclaimed portfolio of historical films, including Lies on the Line, which won Best Production Design at London's New Renaissance Film Festival, and her BIFA-qualifying third short, The Lace, starring Kate Bracken (Being human, Calibre). Nicole most recently directed The Pen that Would not Bow staring Georgia Hirst (Vikings), for the historical streaming platform Yoreflix, and is currently debuting two additional projects on the festival circuit, The Cycling Adventures of Lettice Bly and The Three Graces, which were both filmed in the summer of 2025. She is about to complete her 1930s black & white film, March on Madison Street which pays homage to Old Hollywood classic cinema.
